

Flame Control Joint Initiative

RISK PREVENTION

The problem. Project's solution

Communities in the Romania–Ukraine border region are increasingly exposed to major risks such as floods, wildfires, and emergencies arising from geopolitical tensions. These threats are intensified by climate change, rugged terrain, and gaps in preparedness, making rapid and coordinated response difficult. To address them, the project invests in modern infrastructure, advanced equipment, and joint training, fostering standardized procedures and stronger cross-border cooperation to ensure effective emergency management and long-term community resilience.
